

Catherine Swoboda, Science Policy Intern

Catherine started with the Science Policy Office in June 2010. She received a B.S. in Agronomy (2008) and a M.S. in Crop Production and Physiology (2010) from Iowa State University, where her research focused on soybean production and management. While pursuing her degrees, Catherine completed internships and studied soybean production and tropical agriculture in both Brazil and Costa Rica. She was also a Crop Science Society of America Golden Opportunity Scholar.
