

Nancy Blaney has worked on behalf of animals for more than 25 years and is currently a Senior Policy Advisor with the Animal Welfare Institute, which has been the leading voice for animals across the country and on Capitol Hill since 1951. Her “portfolio” has included many issues, including enforcement of the Animal Welfare Act, legislation affecting companion animals and animals used in research, and the relationship between animal cruelty and other forms of violence and the need to improve the prosecution of animal-related crimes. She serves as co-chair of the Animal Cruelty Advisory Council of the Association of Prosecuting Attorneys. Nancy came to the animal protection movement after a career on Capitol Hill and is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the University of Maryland.
