State, Foreign Operations, and Related Programs

The 2022 State, Foreign Operations, and Related Programs Appropriations bill provides $62.24 billion, which is $6.737 billion above 2021 – an increase of 12.1 percent. The legislation:

- Supports the world’s most vulnerable with assistance to meet urgent humanitarian needs, many of which have been exacerbated by the COVID-19 pandemic
- Rebuilds the global public health infrastructure with a dramatic increase in funding for global health security to confront the current COVID-19 pandemic and prevent future pandemics
- Confronts climate change with funding for global efforts to reduce emissions, including the Green Climate Fund
- Advances women’s rights by increasing funding for family planning, increasing United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) funding, and repealing restrictions on safe and legal abortion
- Promotes democracy with funding to support allies and partners of the United States, particularly to counter governments such as the People’s Republic of China, that undermine the core values of democracy

Bill Summary:

- Recommends over $3 billion to address the Climate Crisis and other environmental issues, including $1.6 billion for the Green Climate Fund, the first direct appropriation for the Fund.
  - These needed investments will assist the millions of people at greater risk of hunger, disease and displacement due to climate change including by conserving, restoring, and reforesting 20 million hectares by 2025, and rapidly accelerating the transition to net-zero emissions in at least 20 partner countries;
- Invests in Global Health and the Prevention of Future Pandemics by including $10.6 billion to support the health of families and communities around the world, a $1.445 billion increase over FY2021 enacted. Included is a substantial investment of $1 billion, an increase of $810 million, in global health security to prevent future pandemics through both bilateral and multilateral mechanisms;
  - These investments will bolster the surveillance, detection and response capabilities of countries around the world and reinforce the governance and accountability of the International Health Regulation to protect against another pandemic.
- Supports women’s health globally by: 1) substantially increasing funding for bilateral family planning to $760 million (+$185 million above the prior year); 2) directing a U.S. contribution to UNFPA of $70 million (+$37.5 million above the prior year); 3) removing the Helms amendment restrictions that have prohibited safe abortion and health care services for poor and vulnerable women in low-income countries; and 4) permanently repealing the Global Gag Rule on non-governmental organizations that receive U.S. assistance.
These policy changes and funding increases will help the 218 million women worldwide who have an unmet need for contraception and help prevent the estimated 299,000 women who die annually of pregnancy-related causes largely because they cannot access the care they need.

- Increases humanitarian assistance by $700 million to address the historic levels of global displacement and humanitarian need resulting from natural disasters, conflict, and the pandemic and to rebuild the U.S. Refugee Admissions program.
  - This will maintain United States leadership to cope with the record-setting 235 million people worldwide (nearly 1 in 33) in need of humanitarian aid and protection.
- Provides over $1.6 billion to promote a free and open Indo-Pacific and help counter the growing influence of the government of the People’s Republic of China in developing countries.
- Reaffirms strong support for UN organizations and restoration of American leadership on the world stage, including full funding for the UN regular budget and peacekeeping (including payment of arrears), UNRWA, UNFPA, and the WHO.
- Increases resources to the Department of the Treasury in order to provide economic relief to vulnerable low-income countries recovering from the impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic through both bilateral and multilateral programs.
- Provides economic support and flexibility through the Export-Import Bank to U.S. companies impacted by the pandemic in addition to helping them better compete globally.
